Kidproof Safety is a niche education company and publisher that is committed to producing high quality, relevant, and innovative safety education delivered to schools, communities, families and child-centric organizations around the world.

Through Kidproof’s courses, seminars, books, newsletters and website, we reach millions of parents, educators, and children across thirty countries each year.

Subject matter experts assist in creating the most current education lesson plans, teacher resources, parent guides, eBooks and classroom materials that address topics such as Bullying, Internet Safety, Personal Safety, Sports Safety, School Safety, Babysitting Safety, Home Alone Training, Safe Parenting, Professional Development and more.

Safety education is a fundamental component of childhood education. Although not measured by traditional performance scores, the importance of accurate, informed and structured safety education is vital in the success of children’s health and well-being. After all, a child who does not feel safe is unable to focus on their education.

Let us focus on their safety while they focus on their grades

Our Story

Kidproof Safety was formed in 2000 by Samantha Wilson, a former police officer and internationally recognized expert in child and family safety. As a cop, Samantha received vital and cutting-edge child safety information that was only being shared by law enforcement and other helping agencies. The information was not “top secret” but had no way of reaching those who needed it most — kids and parents. So she formed Kidproof to do just that.

A must-have for every teacher and school administrator, The Ultimate Guide to Teaching Safety is a comprehensive manual for building a safe school community.

Written by Samantha Wilson, founder and president of Kidproof Safety, the world’s largest child safety education company, the guide helps prepare teachers and educators for the difficult and often misunderstood task of teaching vital safety lessons to elementary school-aged children.

Teachers are expected to meet changing requirements in safety curriculum, but are often given little or no formal training on how to teach sensitive and life-saving subjects to their students. Teachers must be clear, confident and compassionate when teaching a child how to deal with a bully, use the Internet, respond to an injury or make safe choices around strangers. The wrong approach can cripple a child with fear, or lead them straight into danger. Safety education that is empowering, compelling, intuitive and memorable can, and does, save children’s lives.

This essential handbook will become the number one resource teachers and administrators turn to time and time again.

EVERY PARENT HAS A NIGHTMARE:
Their daughter has been abducted. Or their son is being bullied at school. Or their teenaged daughter has changed drastically since going out with a new boyfriend.

Today’s kids and teens, despite being seemingly street smart and Internet savvy, are vulnerable to a frightening range of dangerous situations. How do we keep them safe, yet still allow their independence and confidence to grow? Safe Kids, Safe Families has all of the answers. Written by the founder of Kidproof Safety, a former police officer with specialized training in crimes against children—and also a mother herself—this essential guide offers timely advice on:

- How to make the right choice, before a crime occurs
- Separating perceived danger from the real thing
- Learning how to trust your instincts
- Teaching kids to avoid becoming a victim in the chat room, the school yard or the mall
- How to “read” your teens’ friendships for potential unsafe behavior

What Dr. Michelle Borba has done for parenting skills, Samantha Wilson does for family safety in this comprehensive, empowering guide.
